How we see ourselves

fine is an Austrian textile editor based in the Tyrolean mountains. And that is a hallmark of us and our collections. They primarily incorporate our country house style which emphasises the company's regional origins as well as extending beyond these origins: modern but not too trendy, Tyrolean yet with a broad vision.

High-quality materials form the basis of our upholstery and decorative fabrics. For private use, we often work with wool, linen and cotton, while in the contract sector we offer qualities with all required properties.

Paired with these materials, complex colour moods, elaborate adaptations such as embroidery, prints and appliqué and our experience with Alpine design elements create distinctive collections bearing our company's traditional signature.

We offer cushions and blankets to match our fabric collections. All home accessories are crafted with great care and are real design statements. This rounds off our range and offers an effortless way to create individualised rooms.

How we see our customers fine operates mainly in the German speaking countries, but also throughout Europe and, in some cases, overseas.

Long-term, successful business relationships are of great importance to us. We provide our customers with high-quality service; first-class sales documentation and professional sales structures are just as important. Our fabrics and home accessories are designed to inspire and delight.

Our product range

fine fabric collections

Our collections with a high proportion of natural fibres are primarily intended for private homes. We process natural materials featuring distinctive designs to create collections with a clever structure. fine is considered THE Tyrolean specialist for cosy home fabrics.

Every two years we present our signature collection MOUNTAIN DELUXE. It represents the way we see ourselves and, at the same time, demonstrates our competence in dealing with alpine design elements and manufacturing techniques.

Our flame-retardant collections are designed for commercial use. The first class quality of these fabrics puts us in a top position in the contract sector - especially when it comes to furnishing hotels. All qualities fulfil the mandatory standards and specifications and have excellent use and care properties. At the same time, the contract fabrics are also perfect for use in private homes because they are not only easy to care for, but they are also beautiful and have a natural look and feel.

fine home accessories

We round off our programme with cushions and blankets matching the fabric collections. Our aim is to support our customers in presenting themselves on the market and provide an attractive way to realise design ideas.
